ROSSELLINO BUST SELLS FOR $17,900

Total for Davanzati Collection at American Galleries Reaches $696,605.

88,500 FOR STUCCO WORK

Mrs. Burke Roche Buyer of Complete Suit of Sixteenth Century Armor.

The Rossellino bust was the centre of interest in yesterday's session of the great Davansati Paince art collection, now in progress in the galleries of the American Art Association. It led the list of sales, going for $17.500 to an unidentified buyer represented by Otto Bernet, agent.

This bust, which was carved in wood and painted with the colors of life, came from a patrician family of Padus. It had been in their possession for generations, and the tradition in the family always had been that the author of the bust was Bernardo Rossellino, who was a favorite pupil of the great Donatello. The bust is a portrait of a girl, smilling in a provocative way, and sparkling throughout with innocence and good health.

The total for the afternoon session was $50,500, which brings the grand total up to $595,605. The attendance was as surge as the capacity of the galleries permitted, and many notable persons were present.

Polychrome Stucco Brings $8,500.

Polychrome Stuces Brings $8,500.

A polychrome stucce bas-relief which was of the same period as the Rossellino bust brought the second highest figure of the day, selling to W. W. Seaman, agent, for $3,500. The sculptor, who has not been yet identified, is evidently of the Donatello school. The subject is a Virgin, seen in half length and modelled in low relief. She is dressed in a red robe and raises clasped hands in adoration before the Infant Christ

A portrait bust of Petrarch, the celebrated poet, in polychrome stucce, sold to R. H. Lorens, agent, for $3,790, and the same buyer gave $3,100 for No. 765, a fourteenth century figure in white marble by Arnoldi. The subject was a Virgin and Child, Arnoldi the sculptor being best known for his elaborate altar in the Loggia del Bigalio in Florence.

A terra cotta bistuette of the Virgin and Child which dates from the fifteenth century and is attributed to Antonio braied poet, in polychrome etucco, sold to R. H. Lorens, agent, for $3,790, and the same buyer gave $3,100 for No. 705, a fourteenth century figure in white marble by Arnold. The subject was a Virgin and Child, Arnoldi the sculptor being best known for his elaborate altar in the Loggia del Bigalio in Florence. A terra cotta statuette of the Virgin and Child which dates from the fifteenth scentury and is attributed to Antonio Rossellino, No. 712, went to Otto Bernet, agent, for $4,100. Mr. Bernet also paid $2,800 for No. 708, a polychrome stucco bas-relief of a Virgin and Child said to be the work of Donatello, and $3,100 for No. 696, a portrait bust of St. Anthony. Archbishop of Florence.

W. Milliken gave $3,300 for No. 713, a fourteenth century tabernacle, the masterpiece of Il Maestro della Capella: $1,700 for No. 714, a Sienese polychrome carton alto-relief of the Virgin and Child, and $330 for No. 586, a Cafaggiolo majolica vase. G. Dupont paid $1,050 for No. 754, a sixteenth century bronse cannon mounted upon a carriage.

Mrs. Burke Roche Buye Armor.

Mrs. Burke Roche Buys Armor. Mrs. Burke Roche bought No. 792, a complete suit of Italian cap-a-ple armor dating from the sixteenth century; S. Grancsay pa'd $1,600 for No. 790, an Italian half suit of armor, and $1,700 for No. 791, a second half suit of armor dating from the sixteenth century; Mrs. C. Lee gave $675 for No. 675, a fitteenth century majolica drug vase; $825 for No. 651, a Faenza majolica drug vase, and $700 for No. 689, an Orvieto primitive majolica pitcher.

wase, and $700 for No. 689, an Orvicto primitive majolica pitcher.
David Belasco paid $205 for No. 758, a sixteenth century processional haiberd, and $150 for No. 740, a fifteenth century sword. L. L. Jones gave $450 for No. 714, an early Umbrian statue of carved and painted wood; J. K. Branch paid $100 for No. 684, a Cafaggiolo majolica vase, and W. H. Johnson gave $525 for No. 659, a lustred majolica vase by the celebrated master Giorgio, and $600 for No. 682, a Paduan majolica bowl dating from the sixteenth century. from the sixteenth century

The sale of the Davansati art objects continues on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, the paintings being sold Monday evening in the Plaza Hotel.

OLD CHINA ON VIEW.

Extensive Collection of Frederick Williamson to Be Dispersed.

An art collection which Frederick J.
Williamson has spent years in forming, and which consists of old china, old glass, newier and copper, was placed on exhibition at the American Art Association. The collection is so extensive that three galleries are required for it. It will remain on view until the sale, which begins on December 4.

It has been some time since such a showing of historic plates has appeared in the auction rooms. Many of the most famous specimens are included, and all the personages and events of our early history that have become classic will here be found embedded beneath the rich blue, brown and pink glasses of Staffordshire ware. These platters and pots, in spite of their great age, will be found to be in singularly fine condition.

Some of the Pieces.

Some of the Pleces.

Among these is the rare "City Hall" plate in mulberry glaze, by Jackson; the "Mount Vernon" and "Kenliworth" plate, a custard cup with the "Boston State House," by Ridgeway; a terra cotta teapot with a Chinese decoration, including Dog Foo finials; a Castleford tea set; a Staffordshire pitcher, with a view of Herculaneum; the "Boston State House" cup plate; a platter with the decoration called "A Noble Hunting Parly," by Clews' in the Dr. Syntax series; Stevenson's "City Hotel, New York," and a Staffordshire pitcher with a raised decoration of "Marriage of Cupid and Psyche," by Flaxman.

There are of course many of the Dr. Syntax plates, the "B. & O. R. R. Upgrade," by Wood, and many specimens of the various lustres, both in plates and pitchers. Two Bennington lions are unusually large and interesting, and there are also doorplates and knobs and dishes in Bennington ware.

A curious round platter dates from 1785, and was decorated by Louis Saydois in Nevers, France. The design is the tree of love, "l'arbre d'amour," and in the leafy branches of the tree eight coy gallants are perched, while below five militant females strenuously woe them. Amusing legends in French verse describe each of the women, somewhat in the style of T. E. Powers's cartoons. Two of the most persistent of these Phyllises are actually cutting the tree down with a great saw.

A posset cup is another unusual place of china, being in brown Toft slipware. It has a floral decoration and the words "The best is not too goed for you" encircle the brim in large legious. Toby jugs and earthenware bowls and platters, primitively ornamentall, it-capilete this division of the collection.

in line. Certain of the candlesticks, glass lamps, decanters and vases are specimens of distinguished workmanship and cover representively the period of 1763 to 1850. There are quite large groups of sets in various shades of both blue and red glass.

The pewter pieces all have the bloom of time upon them and comprise a wide variety of objects. There is a set of cight French pewter wine measures in graduated sizes, and an English set of three, by James Tissee and dated 1746.

An sval pewter platter and strainer is dated 1731 and is signed by Samuel Ellis. Mugs of all shapes and sizes are plentiful in Mr. Williamson's collection, and so are porringers. There are also sait cellars, candlesticks, hot water platters and snuff boxes. The copper pieces include a brasier and an enormous kettle.

CARNEGIE, 81, LOOKS TO 100TH BIRTHDAY

Gets Many Congratulations on Brooklyn. Anniversary From "Boys"

Andrew Carnegie was $1 years old resterday. Reporters had no opportunity of hearing him express regret that he had not joined their craft instead of be coming merely a steel master, for the annual birthday interview custom was given up last year and is not likely to be good health for a man of his years his family has impressed upon him the need of conserving his strength if he is to attain the century mark, which he expects to do.

He spent most of the day in his home, Fifth avenue and Ninety-first street, reading cheerful messages from old friends. Thomas A. Edison wired that it was of no use to send congratulations, as he would drop in and see Mr. Carnegle on the latter's eighty-fifth birthday. There was an affectionate message from Charles M. Schwab. None of the steel men whom Mr. Carnegle calls his "boys" forgot to salute their former chief.

He rode through Central Park in an automobile in the afternoon and presided last night over a family dinner to which a few close friends were invited. He did not practice with golf sticks in his garden. He likes that, but the day was too cold.

The eighty members are the pick of musicians of the 10,000 men of the department, and come from all ranks of the Police Department. They welcome comparison with any professional band in the country, for they have drilled long and hard under skilled leaders.

The concerts are to raise funds for the support of the band as well as to give music lovers a treat. Vaudeville will supplement the musical numbers, and afterward there will be dancing, music to be furnished by an orchestra of twenty-five men under the leadership of Prof. Chester W. ORNSTEIN IN FIRST RECITAL OF SEASON

His Best Interpretative Art Shown in the Franck-Bauer Numbers.

Leo Ornstein, pinnist, gave his first recital of the present season yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. The programme contained Cesar Franck's organ prelude, fugue and variation, arranged by Harold Bauer; some Scandinavian music by Grgendahl, Grieg and Ludwig Schytte; two pieces each by Schumann, Debussy, Chopin and Mr. Ornstein himself; Cyril Scott's "Danse Negre," "The Nightingale" of Alableff-Liest and the "Mephisto Walts" by Liest.

Mr. Ornstein's best interpretative art was shown in the Franck-Bauer number, where he was fully in sympathy with the composer's spirit and his playing contained sincere feeling and poetic sentiment. Schumann's "Des Abends" was also well played, but in an excerpt from his "Kreisieriana" the proper style was lost.

What was perhaps meant to be the chief number in the list was Schytte's contain, opus 52, but as this work is little more than a reminiscent and shown.

chief number in the list was Schytte's consta. opus 53, but as this work is little more than a reminiscent and showy piece of writing in lighter vein it gave Mr. Ornstein no important opportunity other than to show a fine melodic sense and some fluent technic. The pieces by himself were his "Impressions of the Thames" and "A ia Chinoise," and to these he added another of his own compositions, one called "Anger." In these pieces, as in other numbers, the planist had full scope for the display of his brilliant virtuosity.

In the evening Charles Cooper gave a plano recital in the same hall. His chief numbers were Beethoven's E flat sonata, opus 31, No. 3; Brahms's G minor ballade and B minor rhapsodie, and Chopin's B stat minor sonata. Mr.
